Unicorn Hunter's Guild Announces Historic Event

Chuck Vose, Unicorn Hunter

Unicorn trainers are highly qualified professionals who stand between us and anarchy. Mythically they feed the Unicorns under their responsibility with fairy dust and carrots. The Unicorn diet needs to be perfectly balanced between those two foods because the slightest transgression, one carrot too many for example, can cause the Unicorn to pack up his bags, return to Never, Neverland and sue the particular Unicorn trainer into the poor house.

Unicorn trainers also read the Mythological creature bedtime stories at night or any other time it feels like having a nap. The last very important task of any competent Unicorn trainer is brushing the Unicorn twenty seven times a day. Military speaking the crucial part is taking the Unicorn's phone calls and making sure it doesn't run out of dental floss. Unicorn trainers remain today, as in ancient times, the elite of our society, living in private Unicorn mansions and moving among us largely unknown. Unknown but for one man.

Never before has the world seen the skill and dexterity in handling and training of Unicorns as that of Chuck Vose, the most famous of all Unicorn trainers. This November 20th, Chuck Vose returns to the source. This will be an epic moment in Unicorn history as he attempts to prove that Unicorns still exist in Portland. Starting this November 1st 2010, he begins to assemble his crew for a Unicorn Watching Expedition in Portland Oregon. Rumors have started to spread that he has chosen his key crew members already. Eye-witnesses claim they have seen him in secret meetings with old Unicorn training friends and certain key players in the secretive Unicorn training world. Stay tuned for an exclusive interview later this month when Chuck Vose shares his vision for this expedition and some stories from his Unicorn training past. Interested parties can apply to join this expedition.

Applications to Join the Adventure Crew

My Dear Sir Teiden,

Many would take this resume as an opportunity to exaggerate their accomplishments, in hopes of attaining undeserved respect. Those aren't the sort you need on this expedition. Instead, you need someone with moxie, verve, and--most of all--pluck. In a word--me.

I've hunted kraken in the polar north, bowled with minotaurs, and feasted up on the Vegetable Lamb of Tartary. I once spent seven days trapped in the nest of a thunderbird, my only sustenance the lightning-lice with which it was infested. I have glimpsed the sane Republican. The "rare" and "mythological" are what I live and breathe.

My skills include fletching, filching, and flensing. I can hold my breath for ten minutes, a skill learned while sailing with the mighty pirate, Guybrush Threepwood. I have a preternatural sense of timing, and an uncanny ability to take sole credit for group endeavors. I lead both by example and shouting, adapting as necessary to the situation.

I could go on, but why? If you're serious about success, then you need a serious man. And if you need a serious man, you need Tyler Sellon, BS.

For job offers, accolades, or clarifying questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at this address.

Tyler Sellon.

Exclusive Interview with Chuck Vose, Internationally known Unicorn Trainer

In a chance meeting on the bus this week, we had the unforgettable privilege of interviewing none other than Chuck Vose.

He shared with us some insights about Unicorns, Portland and most importantly, his expedition scheduled for later this month. Mr. Vose, do you believe there really are unicorns in Portland still? "I think that Portland has a strong history of Unicorns but I don't think they've been seen in a little while. Outside of, obviously unicorn trainers and the occasional ethereal vestige in the cloud form that we've all seen."

Have you ever seen a Unicorn?

"Of course, of course. You'll see them under the underpasses sometimes frolicking and they like to get in the way of traffic. They're here."

Rumors abound regarding your proposed expedition this November 20th 2010. What can you tell us about this expedition?

"I'm not prepared to say anything about that at this point."

People certainly are loving this! There has been much media attention and speculation, What do you have to say about all the hype going on currently about yourself and your expedition and of course Unicorns in general?

"I can't say I'm surprised, really. They're pretty special things, you know. But I'm excited! I think that its going to be an interesting event. I hope to see a lot of Unicorns. I'm going to be calling on a couple of friends to really trot out their stuff, if you know what I mean."

What would you say are your chances of actually sighting unicorns this November 20th?

"I think they're pretty good. Like I said, I got a couple friends might be willing to come out, make a guest appearance. But we'll see, you know there's some dangers out there. They might be wary about it - they don't like to be seen, but you know, we've got some history so hopefully we can make this happen."

How do you respond to challenges from the elusive Unicorns training community that you going public undermines everything they have worked for?

"Ha, they're all sissies, really."

Certainly we're hearing a lot about unicorns right now, but tell us, have you seen a significant change in public opinion and attitudes about Unicorns over the past 10 years?

"Oh, yeah, it's been absolutely crazy. I mean you've seen all the hype around well, that famous poster about the ancient Unicorn burial ground - which is true! It's totally true. But, people haven't really talked about it. But I've seen this whole uprising of Unicorns love and I think its time they took their place as the the national icon that I've been proposing.

I mean, eagles? What? no, no we need to go with out actual national animal, unicorns have been in America forever so we really need to embrace it and take them at that value."

Reports are coming out that you are being very secretive and selective in your expedition crew...What is your vision for this expedition crew?

Can you tell us what individual skills and qualities or group dynamics you are looking for?

"Everyone has been very carefully selected for their prowess with certain supernatural and preternatural abilities. We've got at least one ghost training as well as some ghost hunters which should make for an interesting experience between the two of them. Then we've also got some animal whisperers and some normals. Unicorns really like innocents so there's going to be at least one virgin there.

I've just worked on group cohesiveness more than anything. I've tried to put together a lot of mathematicians and engineers. Unicorns really like building little tiny bridges that they can stomp on so I think the engineers will be able to help out with that a lot.

And perhaps the most important questions of all; Do you Really believe you'll be able to find a virgin? Ha! It's difficult, I mean you have to sift through all the people who claim, but aren't actually. SO, we'll work on it. Maybe a face book ad or craigslist. It's sure to net something.

Why Capture A Unicorn? The Dangers of Unicorn Abuse.

by Chuck Vose

There isn't a single person in all the world who wouldn't love for a bit of magic to come prancing into their lives. Alas, true magic is all too rare; a person would be lucky to catch a glimpse of it just once in their life, and that is more often than not only out of the corner of their eye. Still, it exists. One of the greatest sources of magic in the world is the unicorn.

A beast of great legend, the unicorn is a beautiful, elusive, and dangerous creature resembling a white horse with the cloven hooves of a deer, the tail of a lion, and a single, spiraled horn protruding from the center of its forehead. With this theurgical horn, the unicorn has the ability to heal sickness, purify water, and bring life to things that death has recently visited.

Its powers are envied by many, but possessed by few; understanding how sighting a unicorn can help bring that magic into one's own life.

Unicorns Don't Make Good Pets:

Reasons Why You Might THINK you Want One For Your Very Own.

There are many reasons why you might want to be able to catch a unicorn.

1. Its horn can neutralize poisons, cure illness, and purify water.

In fact, the powerful healing quality of its horn is the reason that unicorns have been driven to the very brink of extinction; it was most vigorously hunted in western Europe during the Black Plague. The people of the day thought that the Unicorn must be killed and the corn cut off for the healing properties to be obtained however, modern research has revealed that close proximity to the unicorn is enough to have many beneficial effects.

2. The unicorn brings luck.

Its very presence is a neutralizing factor for every black cat, walked-under ladder, and broken mirror. Those who have witnessed unicorns in the past have been purported to live very long, happy lives. Why, I myself am 405 years old this November 17th.

3. It will make a unique pet.

Have you ever met or heard of those people who own tigers as pets? Well, you'd forever have them one-upped! When these other exotic pet owners brag about their animals, you can simply look them in the eye and say, "Have you ever owned a unicorn? No?"

Do you know anyone who has? Oh. Tsk, tsk. That's too bad.

Well, I hope that you and your common little kitty will be very happy together." ...

BUT! Beware the Dangers of Dabbling in Unicorn Capture!

Too many people have been tempted to their own terrible fate by the lure of the magical Unicorn.

Never forget, removing such pure creatures from their natural habitat we now know, causes their magic to fade and eventually turn in to a terrible curse of famine and disease upon the owner of such a pure and magical beast. No amount of healing and luck from the Unicorn Horn can counter this terrible curse. For that reason, the luring and training of Unicorns should be left to professional trainers ONLY!

Please, do NOT try this at home.

The Vose Way: How to Capture a Unicorn, a Step-By-Step Guide:

The Can't-Fail, Step-by-Step Instructions To Capturing (and Releasing) A Unicorn

1. The first task for the would-be hunter is to gather a party of quick, strong people; they must all be able to remain calm under pressure and summon bravery in the face of the unknown. No harm will come to travelers in a unicorn's city, but to most people, the vision of the unicorn is unnerving in its beauty and splendor, and the ability to keep a clear mind and steady hand will prove invaluable to this mission.

As it can take up to two weeks to capture a unicorn, the next priority is packing the proper provisions to prepare for a long, hard wait in the darkest depths of the city. It is suggested that the group bring lots of natural foods; fruits, vegetables, and nuts are best, but probably will not last the entire two weeks, so bread is essential as well. It is important to ensure that nothing that was begotten from the bodies of other animals is brought along - no eggs or milk, and especially no meat of any kind. Unicorns cannot abide the existence of butchers within its domain.

The hunter should also pack a significant amount of rope, several bottles of bubbles and bubble blowing wands, and a butterfly net with which to attract and temporarily capture the creature. Finally, a virgin must accompany the people on this quest. The only hope of capturing a unicorn rests on this virgin, as unicorns will only approach pure and beautiful young people. If, for some reason a virgin cannot be found (we realize that such a problem may be shocking to you but we have heard some areas of the world do occasionally encounter such problems and want to account for these things as much as possible), you can substitute a virgin for the biggest slut in your party of gathered people. How you decide this is up to your group - we just aren't going to micro-manage that for you. Once the provisions have been gathered, it is time to venture forth into the woods to begin the search for the elusive unicorn.

2. Secondly, everyone in the party should keep their eyes open for fountains that are unnaturally clear and free of insects or dirt. A member of the group must taste the water of these fountains; if it is determined to be cooler, sweeter, and more refreshing by far than any other water they have ever swallowed, it means that a unicorn has recently purified that fountain and is more likely than not still close by. The clearer and sweeter the water of the fountain, the closer the unicorn.

There is usually only one unicorn per forest, and it can be immensely difficult to track, but knowing the signs of a unicorn's passing will aid in the search. When entering the trees, the group should begin the hunt by looking for spots of flowers that follow a more or less linear pattern; blossoms spring from the ground on which a unicorn's cloven hooves have stepped, and there should be a clear path of flowers on the forest floor that indicates where they have recently been.

The blossoms of these flowers will be full, their stems will be thick, and they will look and smell so alive as to make one think that they would refuse to die even when confronted with the deadly breath of the winter frost. It is important to keep in mind, however, that as plain as this trail of blossoms will appear, and as tempting as it will be to follow, the party must not attempt to pursue the unicorn over this floral path, for the unicorn's incredible swiftness makes any attempts by human beings to follow it entirely fruitless.

3. A final key to finding the unicorn is to look and listen for those places in which the animals of the city are in highest volumes, both in numbers and in noise, as they flock to the unicorn for protection and for the pure sense of joy in life they get when around him. Birds will seem to crowd the fountains and parks as much as do the squirrels who will seem to fur the trunks of the trees as they scurry constantly up and down; it will be quite clear that the crowding of critters in the area is unnatural, and thus magically influenced.

When the searches for flowers, water, and animals are combined, the location of the beast should be relatively easy to discover.

After the unicorn's proximity has been determined, find a clearing nearby. Once the clearing has been chosen, the next task is to set up the trap and wait for the beast to approach.

4. The virgin/slut must first be settled into the middle of the clearing. Flowers should then be woven into the hair, as the unicorn will be attracted to them. The virgin/slut should thirdly be instructed to continuously sing or play softly on a sweet-sounding stringed instrument, preferably a small harp, the sound of which will draw the unicorn out of hiding. Once the virgin/slut is settled, the people of the hunting party must remain completely out of sight of the clearing, for if the unicorn sees them, it will bolt and never again return to that spot. While waiting, all may eat, drink, and rest as quietly as possible. No one must light a fire; the glow and the smoke will alert the unicorn to the presence of humans, and it will be sure to avoid the clearing.

Those of the party should slumber as little as possible so as not to miss the unicorn's appearance. When sleep cannot be avoided, turns must be taken to keep watch. When the animal finally steps into the clearing, it is time to ready the group for the capture.

The unicorn will always approach slowly, cautiously; its appearance is marked first by a strong smell of lavender, followed by a bursting of beautiful song from every bird in every tree in the area and a vibrating hum that fills the air.

The unicorn will draw near the virgin/slut with elegance and grace before stopping to kneel and lay its head in the virgin's lap. The people must wait a few minutes to allow the virgin/slut's continued melody (the virgin/slut must never stop singing or playing) to lull the animal into a false sense of security. At this point, you will need to employ the bubbles.

5. The bubbles will distract and entice the Unicorn with their iridescent shimmer and light floating about. You will need to completely surround the Unicorn with bubbles until it is entirely disoriented. At this point, you should be able to sweep your butterfly net over it's head and tie a rope around it's neck. Once captured, the unicorn will be calm and curious about it's captors nuzzling and butting them with its nose. You will need to be careful not to hold the unicorn for too long. 10-15 minutes is the maximum recommended amount of time. Any longer and you may find it hard to release your unicorn and then must suffer the curse. This method of catching a unicorn is sure to bring success.

The Involvement of Consenting Adults is NOT Exploitation

Public Statement by Chuck Vose:

What you read was old literature. Times change and our literature changes with us. Those instructions were from a text I wrote over 200 years ago when virgins were plentiful and people were a lot tougher.

When that text was written, getting shot in the shoulder was no big deal, it happened all the time. Additionally, we have a lot more sluts now and they attract Unicorns even better.

It's a puritanical lie that Unicorns are only drawn to virgins - they actually prefer sluts.

Furthermore, with better technology, greater understanding of the psychic plane and the ability to speak with the spirits at the burial grounds, we no longer need to shoot the virgin in the shoulder with an arrow.... or at all. A simple combination of non-violent methods render much more efficient and socially acceptable results.

The excursion planned for November 20th is purely non-violent. No virgins or sluts will be injured or exploited in any way whatsoever. All of the participants in my expedition are adults.

Consenting adults. And I hold that consent is not exploitation.

Regarding the reference to the terrible events of 2005, well I would never kill a unicorn again. It is simply ... the most terrible thing. There were extenuating circumstances that were not explained at all in what you read. That was an expedition in Australia and we got in too deep. There was nothing we could have done. If I could have that day to do over again I would, but we all know life is never that simple.

There were extenuating circumstances that were not explained at all in what you read. That was an expedition in Australia and we got in too deep. There was nothing we could have done. If I could have that day to do over again I would, but we all know life is never that simple.

Anyone who doubts my methods or my integrity as a Unicorn Trainer is welcome to join the viewing portion of my expedition to see first hand how I operate. There really is no better way to understand the majesty of the handsomest of equine nor the purity of my methods.

Finally, anyone who has anything else to say about me, have the courage to say it to my face.

Assembling the Crew

Cameron Elliott Master Urban Tracker and Secret Agent

We caught up with Cameron Elliot undercover in Argentina where he shared with us a bit about being an Urban Tracker. There have only been two other Master Urban Trackers in this Century and none of them have been under 30 except Mr. Cameron Elliot himself.

Mr. Elliot specializes in the hidden and secret places. His gift for exploration is lauded by his peers, regarded with exasperation and annoyance by the authorities in various countries from which he has been banned and showered with admiration and fascination by young would be adventurers everywhere.

His success is in part due to his unique genetic inheritance that he refers to as sparkle vision. Not to be confused with sparkle motion. He is the 4 grandson of the renowned Dr. Eli E. Elliot, and the first descendant in this line to carry the same gene that allows him to see the paths where Unicorns have tread. He describes it as looking like a slight milky film mixed with sparkles. He is also the creator of the patented Sparkle Vision Potion #9. Sparkle Vision Portion #9 comes in both lotion and spray formulas and can be applied to any eye-wear to enhance his own ability to fully see the Unicorn Trails. It works for others without his special genetic makeup to a less dramatic effect. When applied to the eyes or any eye-wear, "Normals" as he calls them can see bits of glitter on the sidewalk and lamp posts where Unicorns have walked.

Cameron Elliot is a long time friend of Chuck Vose and has worked with him on Unicorn Adventures many times in the past. Elliot was, in fact the one who pulled Chuck Vose out of the rubble after the tragedy of 2005. Chuck Vose has been quoted saying, "It's really all because of Cam that I got into the Unicorn business in the first place. I couldn't have done it without him."

Professor Dylan Wilder-Tack, World Famous Tiny Unicorn Bridge Engineer

Professor Dylan Wilder-Tack, World Famous Unicorn Bridge Engineer, who usually declines interviews, spoke with us today in an exclusive interview.

The Professor shared with us; I began my career as a tiny bridge engineer in the court of the Fairy Queen where I built tiny mechanical flying mice for her majesty. Those were glorious days filled with magic and shiny glittering whiskers. The mechanical mice I constructed were a precise and exacting design of my own on which her majesty's bountiful self could mount and soar above her subjects.

I first met Chuck Vose at a conference on magical construction of bumblebees, which as we know defies the laws of aerodynamics, which presented the perfect challenge to the magnificent and dazzling intellect of Mr. Vose and myself. Together we believed we could build a better bee.

Alas shortly after the conference, the Queen was gobbled up by her flying mouse and I was cast out of the Court of the Fairies in disgrace. Apparently, they didn't appreciate my gastrointestinal accuracy.

As it turns out, Chuck had great need for a tiny feats of engineering and set me to work immediately upon the design of tiny bridges for unicorns. I began with tiny replicas of The Golden Gate Bridge and the Galloping Gurdie*. Alas, my designs were stolen by a weasel-faced underling of the Queen, Andrew Lloyd Wright, and made into monstrous atrocities. I continued my endeavor undaunted, trying to construct the perfect tiny unicorn bridge, which I believe I shall succeed at this November 20th.

Incidentally, you may be wondering why unicorns need tiny bridges. The answer is quite simple; unicorns stomp these bridges in defiance of their lost brothers. The tale that we now know as The Billy Goat's Gruff is a crude interpretation of The Tale of the Unicorn Brothers, who were tragically subverted by the evil Bridge Troll. This stomp is a strike for all of unicornkind.

Unicorn Quarterly feel fortunate to have spoken with the elusive and dazzling Professor Wilder-Tack whose harrowing work with tiny engineering will surely contribute to the success of the Unicorn Expedition this November 20th.

Raelynn Keron, World Famous Astrologer

In an exclusive interview with Raelynn Keron today, we learned more about the amazing cast Chuck Vose has drawn together and insight into what the Expedition Crew can expect this November 20th.

The omens that precede this Unicorn Expedition are growing and with it, anticipation for this exciting event. Not only that, but Keron brings with her first hand experience with luring Unicorns! I have indeed signed on as an Astrologer for this much anticipated Unicorn Expedition. Though I had expected this event and my participation in it for some time, I am no less honored to be involved. I have not had the pleasure of working with the honorable Chuck Vose in the past, nor have we met. Yet I feel as though I already know him. I have followed his work closely for several years, since I realized this event would occur. I have even had dreams about this day since my initial prediction. The dreams have grown stronger and clearer as the day has approached. This has never occurred with any prediction in the past, which should tell your readers just how unprecedented this event is. I cannot elaborate on these dreams, as that would be extremely unprofessional, but I can say that unicorns, sluts, and a zucchini were involved. I would say my prediction of the event and the accompanying dreams are the most important qualifications for participation in this event. In addition I am well renowned in my field for the accuracy of my predictions. My fans should know that one additional qualification I have for this expedition is that I was involved in a unicorn expedition long ago, when I was quite young, with a much less experienced Unicorn trainer who will remain unnamed. However, in that expedition I was the virgin. I have the scar as a constant reminder of that fateful day, my first and only unicorn sighting. I believe that experience is the reason I was able to predict this expedition so accurately. I feel certain that we will be successful in our endeavor considering the favorable planetary alignment, especially Venus in relation to Uranus. In addition, the skilled Mr. Vose has created a team of professionals that will take full advantage of the favorable astrological conditions. I can't wait to see what this amazing team can do! This day is sure to go down in history.

There you have it folks! Though we are left wondering where exactly this scar is! In our interview Ms. Keron declined to say where. We do now know that the planets are aligning and indications all point to fantastic success this November 20th. Unicorns will be seen. You read it first here at Unicorn Quarterly, your best news source for all things Unicorn.

World Famous Unicorn Astrologer and Unicorn Astrology Camp Director, Clara Householder

Clara Householder, world famous astrologer shared some of her universal wisdom with us today.

Ms. Householder, a sexy and decidedly alluring blond, resides currently in Olympia and very sweetly replied that she was happy tp speak with us and mysteriously referenced a past involving Darwin and Amelia.

Perhaps this is a constellation relating to Unicorns, Astrologers can be vague at times.

Nevertheless, Ms. Householder spoke with us saying,

Honestly, I feel very honored by the opportunity not only to speak with Unicorn Quarterly, but to be apart of this expedition. I understand that there are many Unicorn Astrologists who would love an opportunity such as this! I mean really, how many Unicorn Astrologists can say they've had the opportunity to work with the Chuck Vose?!

As for your questions. My greatest accomplishment in the field of Unicorn Astrology has been aiding in alluring the unicorns. It is said that a unicorn will only show itself when the ruler is just and kind and when times are peaceful and prosperous or when there is a virgin who exposes her breast in the woods. Well, we have found that sluts with zucchinis works just as well, if not better than the former methods for attracting unicorns.

The sluts and zucchinis are not the most important piece, however, Uranus is. It is no coincidence that Uranus plays a major role in determining the approachability of a creature who is often referred to as "an ass with a horn". Without Uranus in it's correct alignment, there would certainly be no unicorn sightings or taming.

My prediction for November 20, 2010?

Well, Uranus looks like it just might cooperate with us for the evening. Now we just need the sluts and zucchinis and Chuck knows what to do from there! I am looking forward to the expedition! Looking forward to the expedition indeed! Lucky Chuck Vose! It's no wonder he picked Ms. Householder! What a spectacle is in store for us all this November 20th!

Tyler Sellon, World Famous Adventurer and All Around Renaissance Man

We at the Unicorn Quarterly had the unexpected honor of speaking with Tyler Sellon, the world famous adventurer and all around Renaissance Man. He shared with us a bit about himself and we were awed. This is a man who knows the magical, mythical world of unicorns like no other. He describes himself as a man with moxie, verve, and--most of all--pluck. We agree.

Sellon shared with us, "I've hunted kraken in the polar north, bowled with minotaurs, and feasted up on the Vegetable Lamb of Tartary. I once spent seven days trapped in the nest of a thunderbird, my only sustenance the lightning-lice with which it was infested. I have glimpsed the sane Republican. The "rare" and "mythological" are what I live and breathe."

My skills include fletching, filching, and flensing. I can hold my breath for ten minutes, a skill learned while sailing with the mighty pirate, Guybrush Threepwood. I have a preternatural sense of timing, and an uncanny ability to take sole credit for group endeavors. I lead both by example and shouting, adapting as necessary to the situation.

This November 20th, he joins the Chuck Vose Unicorn Expedition for a new adventure of epic proportions. Unicorn Quarterly is your Unicorn Journal for all the latest and most exclusive interviews and information. Join us next week as we speak with more of Chuck Vose's Expedition Crew to learn about the world-class crew Vose has gathered.

Mike Lorenzo, Animal Whisperer Extraordinaire

Today, in an exclusive interview with Mike Lorenzo, we were honored to learn of his amazing talent and skill with mythical creatures.

It's hard to believe, after all the amazing individuals we have interviewed on Mr. Vose's crew, that it could possibly get any better, but then it did with this most recent interview. It is a pleasure to share what we learned from Mr. Lorenzo;

I used to think that dragons and unicorns were just myths. At least until I was jumped by some trolls that wanted the contents of my lunch. After that, I found that life had changed considerably. I began to see gryphons, dragons, and ogres all over the place. I later attended Miskatonic University in order to help my understanding of these creatures, though I later found the school lacking in this department. Though I learned much in combating the old ones, I didn't learn anything regarding the magnificent creatures that occupied the world.

Dejected, I left the school to see if I could find answers on my own.

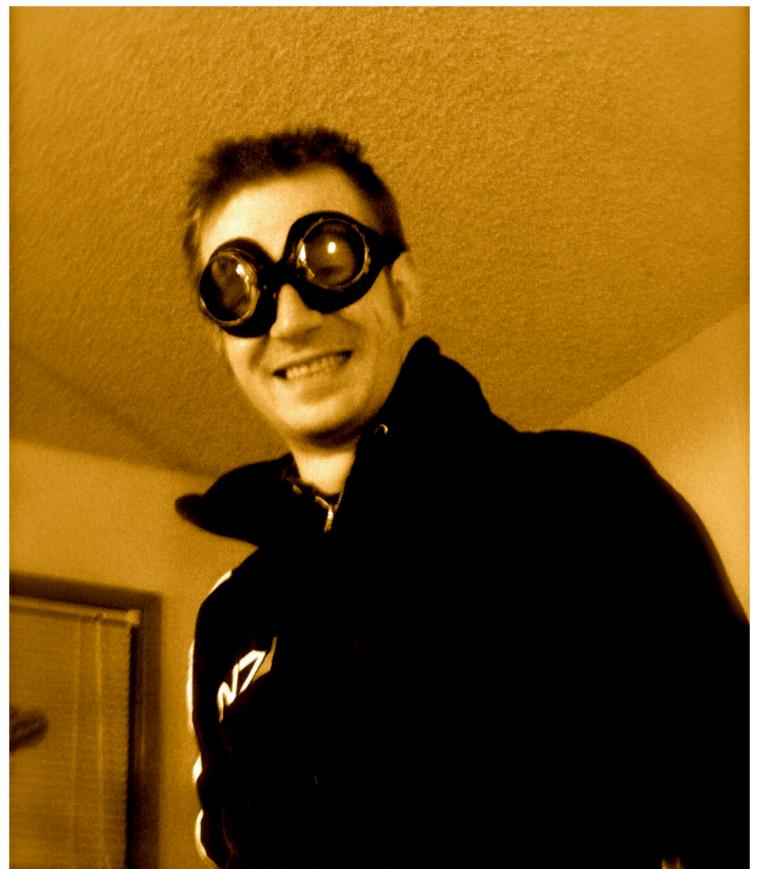

It was late one night in my laboratory where I was working on an experiment combining pop-rocks and beer where fate intervened. My experiment literally blew up in my face. When I later woke, I found that the creatures I had been seeking for so long at my bedside. In the accident it seemed that my mixture had caused me to mutate in such a way that I gave off pheromones that attracted creatures of myth to me!

I began to study and catalog every specimen I could find. Though many of these creatures appeared to be fearsome, a little scratching under the chin or behind the ears showed them to be rather gentle and cuddly. It has now become my life's work to enjoy the company of as many creatures as I can find. Standard animals such as cats and dogs proved easy, but taming a seven-headed Liger proved much more difficult.

I am very proud to be able to help the animals with communicating their point of view, offering long distance reiki treatments, essences and offering a Traditional Chinese Medicine perspective.

Unicorn Quarterly is your best news source for all the latest in the Unicorn world.

Scott Vandehey, Internationally Known Ghost Whisperer

Scott Vandehey, Internationally known Ghost Whisperer shared some of his trade secrets with us today in a brief interview. For thousands of years, Unicorn Spirit has come forward, through a variety of channels, and communicated the wonders and mysteries of life, death, birth, and creation. I refer to such communications as those having passed through the mouths of whisperers such as myself during the last 500 or so years. 250 of which I have spent working with the much respected Mr. Vose as his spirit communicator.

We go way back, as they say.

I could tell you that being a famous Ghost Whisperer is all about talent, but the truth is, I have worked hard over the past centuries to develop the faith and high vibration needed to begin conscious spirit communication through regular meditation. I have purified my heart and mind to align with higher truths. I have meditated on love, forgiveness, etc., I have faced my own inner demons and thus the communication of spirit vibration has risen in me.

As we know, the power of courage, faith and honor is at the root of legends such as The Sword in the Stone, the Holy Grail, Robocop and The Legend of Neil etc. I, who am brave and pure of heart and mind, have the power to succeed where others fail. Inner purity is essential, those who succumb to temptations of the ego and thus lower their vibration can end up attracting negative entities.

After a four year meditation on the top of Mount Olive, I feel ready for this expedition and I am looking forward to testing my skill and purity here in Portland, the City of Roses. ... and spirits. I feel very confident that we will communicate well with the ancient Unicorn Spirits, especially as I am honored by the presence of such a skillful Ghost Hunter as Annie Vandehey. With her Ghost Tracking skills we cannot fail. Modest and humble to the last, Scott Vandehey is truly a man pure of spirit, certain to attune to the vibrations of the Unicorn Spirits. What a treat to speak with him.

Annie Vandehey, World Renowned Ghost Hunter

Annie Vandehey, world renowned Ghost Hunter shared with us that she has been hard at work preparing for this expedition. She is a collector of old world curio and a gadget fanatic with a truly impressive collection. She shared a bit about this with us today. I really, really love my line of work. Honestly it's because of the gadgets! I get to work with so many cool gadgets its kind of insane really! I have about 300 different ones right now, all of my own design and all for the detection and measuring of Ghosts and Spirits. When investigating a location, I usually start by surveying an area with my special surveying gadgets and then set up electronic equipment in the apparent paranormal hot-spots. I then begin taking electromagnetic field and temperature readings, recording audio for electronic voice phenomena (EVPs), and filming with digital video cameras. Many times I can even verbally coax the ghosts into responding, while recording. Afterwards, I analyze all of the data for signs of possible paranormal activity. After reviewing the information, I discuss my findings with my Ghost Whisperer partner who can offer suggestions for dealing with any apparent activity, and answer any questions asked of the spirit by channeling their responses through his body. I think it is important to state here that while I do not believe that every phenomenon captured is evidence of the paranormal, there is much in this world that is caused by the other world. To be certain I am dealing with real paranormal activity, I first look for reasonable explanations for things such as "cold spots" which may be drafty windows, "strange noises" which may be a thumping branch or vermin in the walls, "moving objects" which may have been accidentally bumped or tugged and "phantom lights" may actually be reflections of light from a passing vehicle.

During investigations, I use various equipment, including digital thermometers, EMF meters, thermographic and night vision cameras, hand-held and static digital video cameras, digital audio recorders, and laptop computers.

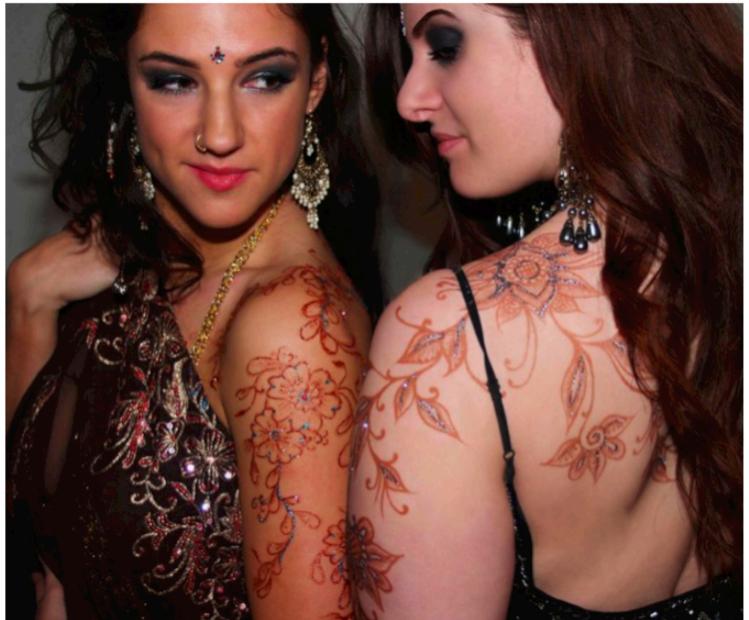

I have experimented with a Geiger counters, my own custom-made geophone, which detects vibrations and flashes a series of LED's that measure the intensity of the vibration.

I am really excited to try out my new EMF detector that makes a buzzing sound when in the presence of an electromagnetic field, and the stronger the field, the louder it buzzes. I may also bring my ion generator, a device that charges the air with electricity and theorized to help spirits manifest, and my white noise generator, an audio device that makes a static background noise and theorized to act as a catalyst for assisting entities in making EVPs.

It's going to be a really great expedition! I just have to pick which gadgets I want to bring which is limited to what I can carry.

Thank you Ms. Vandehey! We all look forward to seeing what gadgets you bring with you this November 20th!

Gizzelle Williams, International Pop Star

International Pop Star, Gizzelle Williams is famous for her narrative ballad style Unicorn songs and bright, playfully lyrical adventures.

It is rumored that she lived for four years in a hidden Unicorn Valley, a sort of Shangri La of Unicorns where the amazing and fantastical stories in her songs actually come from.

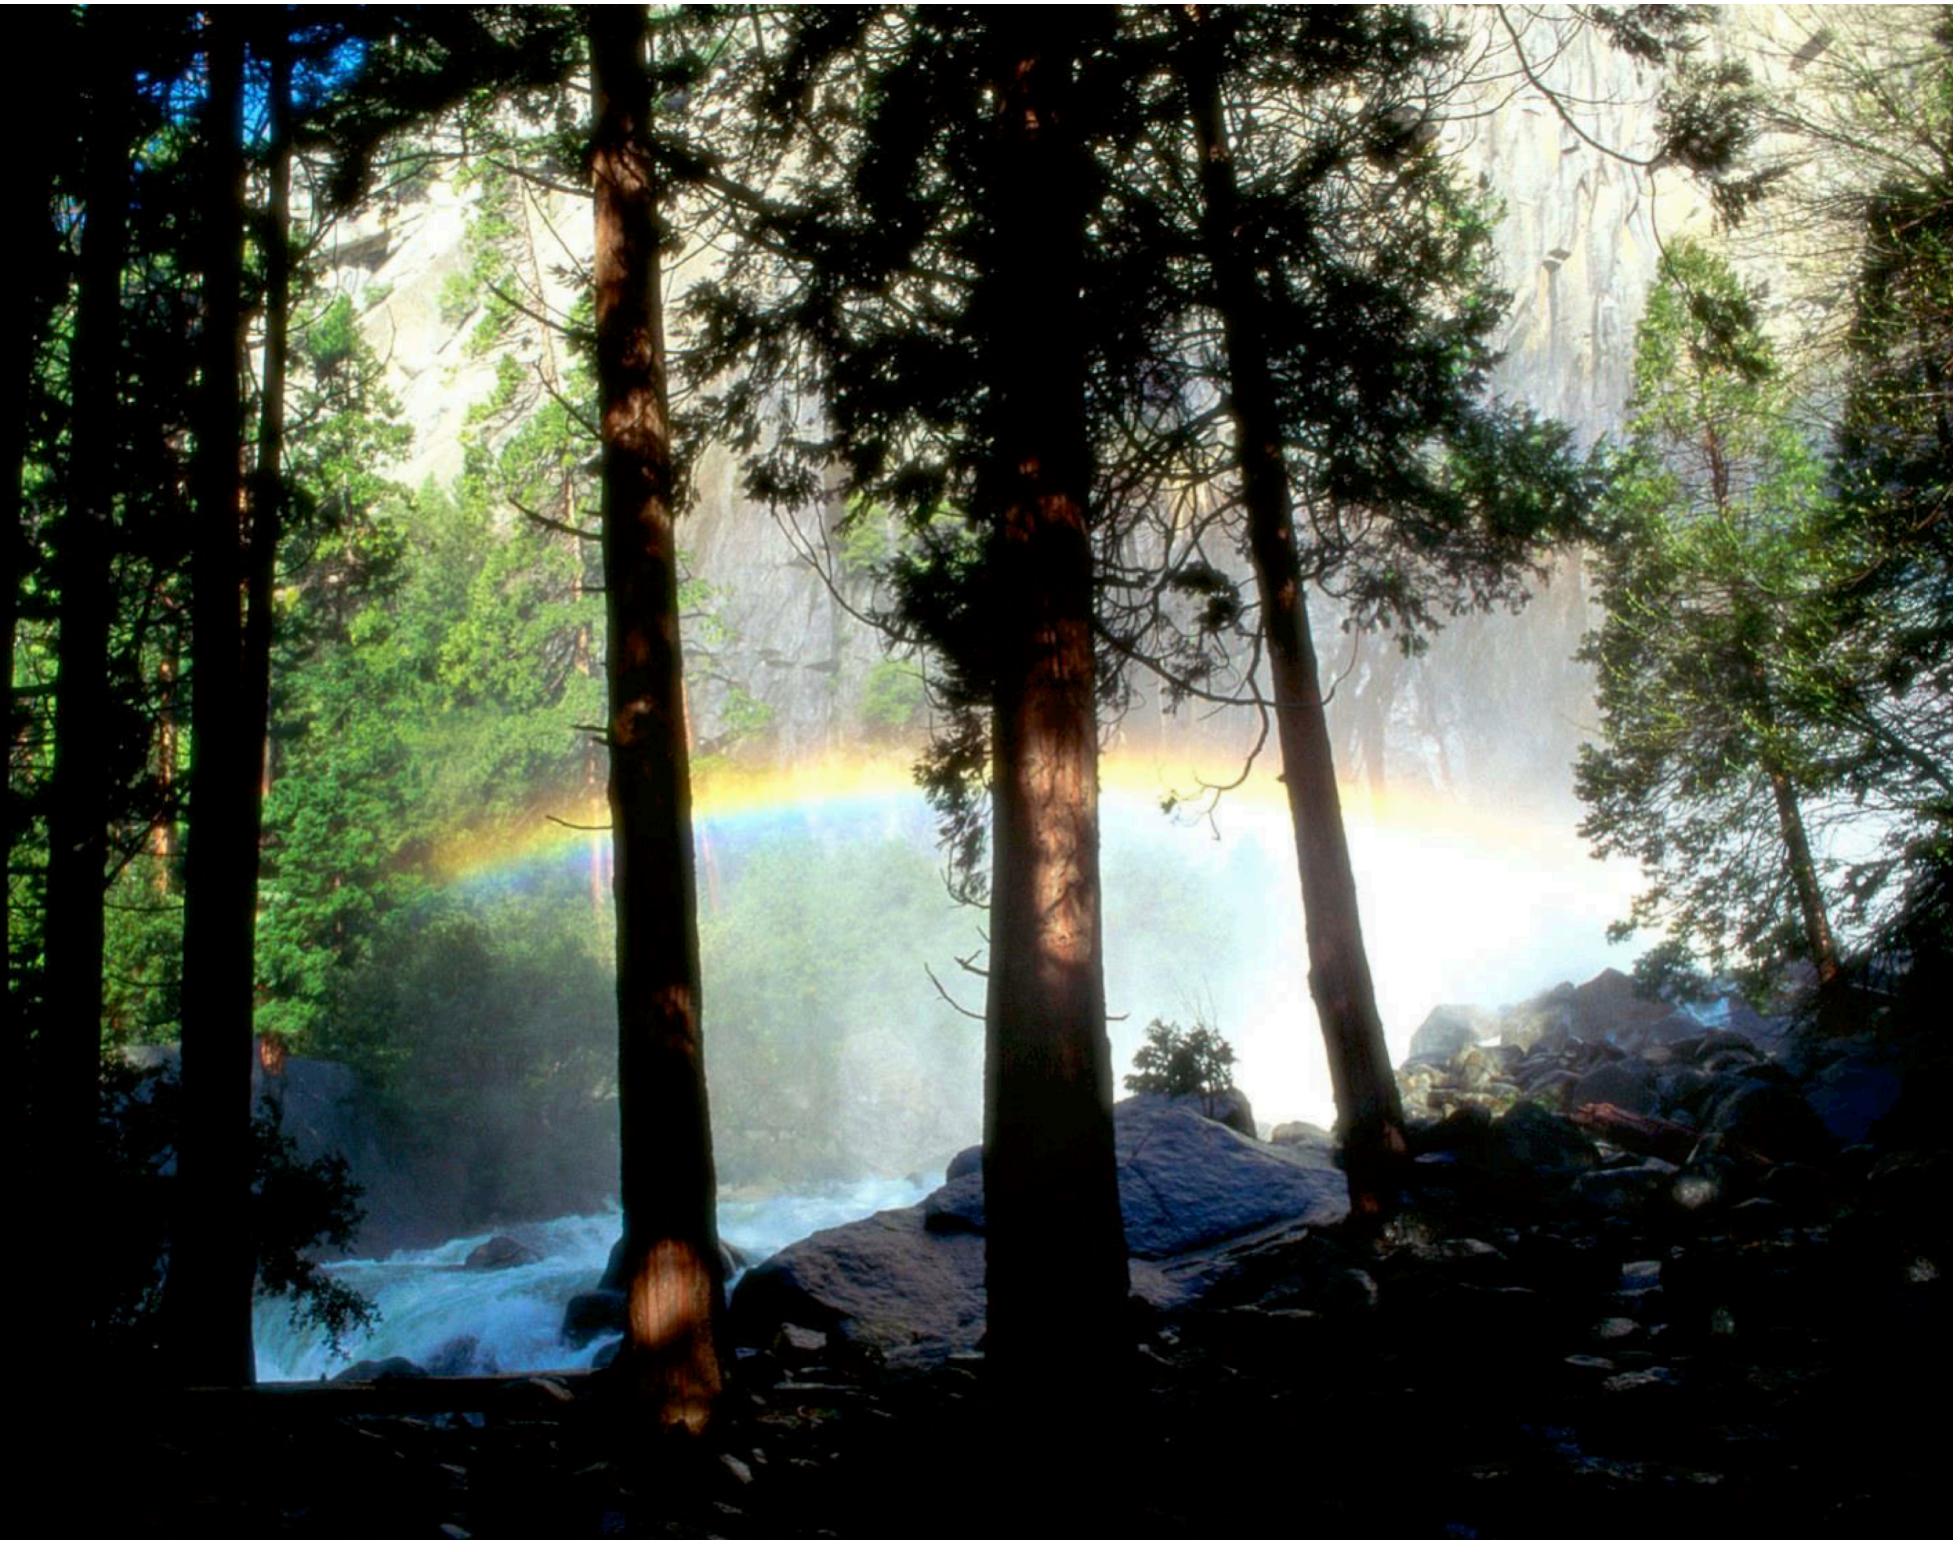

While she does not deny these rumors outright, the devastatingly sexy brunette is decidedly evasive when asked if these stories are true. Suspicions are growing that there may be some truth to them however as, in a surprise last-minute twist, Vose asked her to join the Unicorn Expedition.

Unicorn Quarterly met up with her in a local Gnome Lounge where she sings every fourth Saturday and asked her about her past with Unicorns. she told us, What is real? I deal in the business of music and storytelling. All stories are true ... some of them actually happened. The stories about how it seemed and felt are really more true than flat and lifeless facts.

If you want a factual account, you'll have to ask a historian. If you want to know what my life was like, listen to my music. Those are the truest stories I can tell.

When asked about the role she will play this November 20th, she told us; I think my musical talents will come in extremely useful. I'm really looking forward to sharing my musical talents with the Portland Unicorns.

Curiosity remains unsatisfied. As ever, Ms Williams leaves us wanting more. We can't wait to see her perform this November 20th!

Unicorn Field Theory 2

The Minotaur Skin Drum and Why Michio Kaku is a Hack

Minotaur Skin Drum; Isle of Superstition, Sea of Despair

Period: Stone Binder (UFT 1)

Exact Age: unknown

Artist: Lost to history

Chain of Custody: Unknown, but The Goodwill was involved.

Quantum Phase offset: Ranging between (UFT) Strings, NH3 is $14.01 + 3(1.01)$ and NH5 is $8.01 + 3(Z.01)$

“They basically ask their engineers and whisperers to volunteer some probability figures, then take a guess at it. This is not science. This is voodoo!”
(Michio Kaku on Unicorn Field Theory 2)

“I've been wondering where that was. I told you this would work, you Hack!!”

(Alden Bagnall on real Unicorn Field Theory 2)

Field tested to be extremely useful in the attraction and temporary disorientation of:

Black Footed, May Bell (in June only), Peter P. Rubens (not Rubenesqe), Silver Snout, Under Willow, Blunt Prong, Velveteen Flytrap, Long Prong, Pansy fringed, Frilled Iris (non-green phage) and Rainbow Sparkle unicorns.

Tested with inconclusive or minor results for:

Spotted, Reverse Spotted, Ring eyed, Pot Footed, Prickle Back, Velvet Flytrap, Water Eye, Spiral Snout, Frilled Ren, Whistling Trollup, Catterwalter, Rubenesque, Tulip Clearyfont, Daffodilicustard, Cranked Shaft and Gum Drop Sprinkle unicorns.

Proven ineffective or to have undesirable results on:

Daisy, Brown Eyed, Black Eyed Susan, Patty Cake, Magnolia Fire Brand, Orchid Tongue, Frilled Iris (green phage only), Lilly Root, Crushed Velvet Flytrap, Puff Ball, May Bell (months other than June), Camellia Cabaña, Philipina Cachapero, Flaming Violet, Laurel Scented (not Laurel Branch-ed), English Ivy (Not German) Feather Dumpling unicorns.

Do not use this tool in the presence of a Minotaur or within the threaded radius of any Minotaur commons. They do not suffer the sound with any kind of grace.

It should be noted:

This instrument is dangerous and should not be treated as a play thing. Its most basic mathematical and proto-spatial properties have the potential for disastrous distortions in phalanx level space time string vibration. I'm quite sure I do not need to go into detail regarding how dangerous that can be. Honestly, if you need a primer in Golden Apple physics Theory (GAPT) or the Schrodinger String Variation Economics (SSVE) feel free to contact myself, my assistant Malcolm or Michio Kaku directly at any time.

Honestly, start with Malcolm and I. Kaku is a total Unicorn Field Theory 2 hack, amateur, poser! He's only in it for the cotton candy effect. I've seen him just standing naked in a field of UFTgas, surrounded by wormhole strings and Walternate tethers, fingers in his ears...drooling. I can still smell the cotton candy and will never get the picture of his pale hairless physicist body cocooned in pink fiber clutching at his pocket protector out of my head. That was the same day he let a Daffodilicustard Unicorn, take a tissue sample, invisi-band, ear notch, and subdural tag him with a Level 4 GAPT Wormhole Infuser (L4GAPTWI). All of my gear was contaminated with Garden Gnome residue and had to be tossed into a subspace locker. Who knows here it all is now? The L4GAPTWI cannot be removed in this “reality” and makes him (Kaku) useless in any field research under anything less than level 4 containment. (As if, that can be done in a Nitrogen/Oxygen atmosphere. It is to laugh!!). Given the way that most unicorns react to the company of white haired Asian men it was a huge loss to the study of UFT2.

Please excuse my rambling...contact us before you get into trouble. By the time you realize you need a refresher in the field; it will, most likely, be too late to save you. This is not Saturday morning cartoons. UFT2 will leave holes in the fabric of your reality if you are not prepared. Case in point, Case pointed; Do not stray from the path. It's not funny, this is science.

For more information on my career, and the origins of UFT2 please view a brief documentary put together by my assistant Malcolm and me at the following link. This was an expedition to discover invisible mollusk. I stumbled upon the power of sand and the first fibers of UFT2 on this expedition.

Good Luck'

Setting The Stage

Chuck

You heard from an intern at your office that her sister's mother in law went to an astrologer (the blonde one, you are pretty sure) who told her she was going on an expedition to find Unicorns and she told her friend who was overheard by your intern that her astrologer was seen by the mother-in-law's cousin conversing with Gnomes who, as everyone knows, can see Unicorns and usually knows where they are, if only to be able to keep them out of their gardens. Given this information, you wonder what the astrologer knows but you decide not to ask her outright because you don't want to look like you aren't totally in charge of things here. Also, you think Gnomes are annoying because they aren't all that nice to Unicorns. Vaguely, you wonder why Gnomes and Unicorns aren't friends but you have more pressing matters to attend to. For instance, you are using this expedition to scope people out for a new apprenticeship. You want to be subtle about it - Unicorn Association Apprentice selection is always shrouded in mystery and you want to keep up appearances for them.

Devin

You smelled Cotton Candy along the water front and thought there was a huge festival and got really excited. You ran to the water, but when you got there, there wasn't anything but a big flock of birds and a bunch of squirrels. You have no idea why there were so many birds and squirrels around but it WAS hilarious. You decide to tell this as a really funny story and don't really think it means anything - even if others try to convince you that is does.

Tyler

You had a dream about Unicorns in a park with a single enormous tree. As an engineer, you usually disregard dreams as nothing more than your subconscious babbling when it's unsupervised by your conscious brain but this dream was very vivid... it was almost like a memory more than a dream. You simply don't know what to make of it and so you try to put it out of your mind. Unlike normal dreams however, you can't seem to get it out of your head. It almost has a life of its own and come into you brain unbidden.

You also notice that Raelynn is strangely obsessed with virgins and decide to find out if she is lying about not being a virgin. You don't want to put her on the spot or make her uncomfortable so you decide to go about it by talking to her about her virgin "friends" assuming that she is actually talking about herself.

Cam

You were following a trail along a city street and ran into a sign post. Just as you went down, you could have sworn you saw a Unicorn get on the Street Car. You later woke up in the hut of a Selkie in her human form who didn't really want to hear about Unicorns just then, she was much more interested in (...ahem...) tending your wounds. Anyway, you are starting to doubt the memory now (the selkie was very distracting) and are hesitant to bring it up as you are somewhat embarrassed by the whole running into a post thing. Additionally, you heard that the ghost hunter was out measuring things before the expedition started and you think she might have some info... maybe some insight. You decide to find out if she did go out exploring before everyone else and if she learned anything interesting. You decide to be casual about it and start by asking her about all her gadgets which she very clearly loves.

Tyler

You have been an urban tracker for a long time now and you are ready for a change. You would like to get an apprenticeship in the in the Unicorn Trainers Association but you need a sponsor. You want to apprentice under Chuck and you plan to use this expedition to prove yourself to Chuck. You need to prove to him that you are more eager, more enthusiastic, more skillful and more engaged than everyone else. If all else fails, try to get Chuck alone to talk to him about the flash of white you saw on the bridge over the highway and use that to impress him and persuade him to offer you an apprenticeship. You know that the Unicorn Trainers Association has a magical selection process that is known for its elusive and exclusive aura of mystery and surprise. You have also heard the rumor that UTA not only prefers to use their own selection process but they actively refuse people who ask to join as they see this as undermining their selection process and their exclusive mysteriousness. You need Chuck to suggest an apprenticeship himself.

Clara

You have a really great relationship with Gnomes as they are natural gardeners. Plus you love their brightly colored row houses and gorgeous gardens. You stopped by to chat with a friend of yours in the Pearl District and he was telling you all about his harvest when his old mother rambled by and muttered something in Gnomish. Fortunately you speak you speak a little Gnomish and you caught the phrase "Common garden pest ... something ... something ... Unicorns." You asked your friend about it but he was strangely quiet and quickly changed the subject. You don't want to brag or make others feel intimidated by you (you speak Gnomish for heavens sake! It's the most complex language in existence!) So you hedge and try to find out what other people know about gnomes and their relationship to Unicorns. You really just want to know why your friend wouldn't talk about Unicorns with you. You decide to ask around as casually as possible to find out what other people know about Gnomes. You don't really want to reveal what you heard or that you know any Gnomes, but if pressed, you won't lie.

Additionally, you heard that the engineer had a dream about Unicorns and you are a teensy bit offended that he didn't go to you to ask for an interpretation - you ARE an astrologer after all! You decide to casually mention dreams and try to get him to tell you his dream so you can interpret it for him at great length. (only if he shares though - you don't want to push him).

Raelynn

Secretly you believe that Virgins are much better as Unicorn bait and you are very nervous that the expedition will fail without one. You know of a virgin on Glisan St., in fact a whole lot of virgins live there. They are of legal age for Unicorn hunts and everything! When you talk of your friends, you refer to their house as The Collective. You know that they are virgins but they are also not too prudish, so you think they would probably fit in pretty well. So you try to persuade Chuck and others that really, Virgins are better for luring Unicorns. This is really only based on your own past experience though so you are only half certain and second guess yourself as you try to persuade people that the group needs a virgin. *If the group does go for it, "call" your friends and tell the group that at least ten girls are on the way. (You neglect to mention that they are super flaky) cover for the girls taking a long time to find the group by describing them in great detail. (ie. how pure and sweet they are with long flowing locks and huge bright eyes etc..)

You notice that Genevieve has a bit of something in her aura that suggests she has been canoodling with mythical creatures and you are a bit concerned ... you heard there was a siren seducing people and stealing from them in the NW district and you are a little worried for her. You decide to broach the subject delicately by talking about all the kinds of mythical creatures humans have been seduced by in the past.

Scott

You saw unusually large clusters of birds and squirrels on main near the parkblocks. They were swarming around the giant stag and for a second when you looked, you could have sworn you saw the stag turn it's head and look right at you.

As you stood there, shocked by what you saw, you almost got run over by traffic and a biker yelled at you so you were all flustered and somehow in the process got in the way of the woodland creatures who were also trying to get out of traffic. Then, with out warning, the whole scene resolved back to normal and the animals and traffic were like any other corner in downtown Portland.

Strangely, you noticed Gnomes walking away from where you stood just before they disappeared around the corner and realized they had probably righted the scene with their magic. Strange because you know Gnomes stay generally out of Unicorn business and anything related to Unicorns, including the woodland creature swarms they tend to induce. (unless the Unicorns are in the Gnomes' gardens and then all hell breaks loose.)

The reason for this it that Gnomes regard Unicorns as annoyingly vapid, sparkly pests – all bubbly, happy and WAY too “Disney Princess” for their taste.

Gnomes much prefer a good poetry slam, lyrical dance or a good Russian novel to frolicking in the meadows. Gnomes also regard themselves as totally superior to most other sentient beings, including humans but few people know this as they are exceptionally polite and will never utter a controversial word if they can avoid it.

Also, you notice Tyler bugging Chuck for an apprenticeship but you know that everyone knows that the Unicorn Association (UTA) never picks people if they ask for it - you decide to tease him a bit about it to let him know you know what he's up to. You respect the mysterious selection process enough to not actually say the word apprentice though - you don't want to loose the guy his chance or anything - just give him a hard time.

Mike

A squirrel stopped you the other day to tell you about the overcrowding in his tree for the past few weeks. His tree is one of the places that Unicorns like to gather. With all the hype, lots more Unicorns are coming into town to watch the expedition which in turn attracts a lot more birds and squirrels which has caused a major food shortage. The squirrel wanted you to know that all the Unicorns are planning to tag along in the expedition and follow behind everyone to see what happens – which the squirrel thought was hilarious.

You decide not to share this with the group as you don't want to out your squirrel friend and you know that telling them would just make people feel silly and awkward. Not to mention the Unicorns would leave if they knew that the expedition crew knew they were following behind.

However, if everyone continues to hunt for the Unicorns they may relent and show themselves for a while. You do however, as part of the expedition crew, feel slightly responsible and bad for the squirrels so you try to feed all the city animals you can find as you walk along. You also try as hard as you can to not look over your shoulder while you walk, but it's hard!

If the group gets too accusatory about who knows where Unicorns are or who is or is not sharing all they know. You casually hint that the Unicorns “probably already know we're looking for them.” And “Unicorns probably are watching us right now deciding whether to show themselves or not.” And “We should be really nice to each other so the Unicorns will think, I mean know, we are nice.”

Gizzelle

You saw glitter trails on Broadway while you were out walking and you think it may have been Unicorn trails. You know that Chuck knows everything there is to know about these things so you decide to ask him all about the Sparkle vision and the Sparkle vision potion... maybe you have the Gift too! Do everything you can to get Chuck to give you a sample of the Sparkle vision potion. You don't think to bring it up until people start talking about gnomes but it turnsout that you happen to know something so one else does, Unicorns LOVE that they annoy Gnomes. You don't know why Gnomes get annoyed by Unicorns but whatever it is, Unicorns always seem to ham it up around Gnomes and they giggle hysterically when the Gnomes get all grumpy and mutter-y.

Genevieve

Annie

You were out last night taking readings and doing some preliminary recordings in old town when you were mugged by Dwarfs who took all your recordings. You are a little hesitant to share what you were up to as you aren't totally sure the group will be ok with you going out ahead of everyone to look for Unicorns ... really, you're allowed to walk around down town if you feel like it! ...right? ...but, the others might not see it being so innocent. Not to mention, you lost ALL your work! Which is totally embarrassing to you. You have absolutely nothing to show for you work except the vague clip-clopping hoof noise you heard off in the distance in Old Town. If people ask you anything that might lead you to talk about this, you try to deflect by engaging people in a discussion about how Trolls suck because there was this "one time" when you got mugged in Old town and had all your recordings stolen and wouldn't it be weird if the Unicorns were in Old town somewhere?.

You also have reason to believe something happened with Scott yesterday because he was being really jumpy and talking about Gnomes a lot. Not that talking about Gnomes is weird really, he just usually doesn't talk about Gnomes and Unicorns relations with so much concern and interest.

The Adventure Begins

It's not far at all as the bumble bee flies. Such is the greatness of the engineer, he has built a Better Bee to show you the places where Unicorns fly. But how much do you trust him? Enough to be eaten?

To Dylan: Guide your group to your Better Bee. Will they trust you enough to be eaten alive by your own creation? Seek Unicorns in the mist as you ride in the belly of the mechanical bee.

The Bee spits you out. You are not to his liking - not nearly as tasty as the queen. Nevertheless, it has taken you as far as it may. Look to your right. The Street Crawling Caterpillar in Green, Orange or Red often passes by here.

To Mike: Animal Whisperer, your skills are needed! Summon, if you can the Caterpillar of the Streets. This is a ride you will take to The End and two blocks Beyond.

Your next test is Courage. Dare you eat the food of Unicorns? You are headed to the sacred dining place known to Unicorns as “Sun Set.”

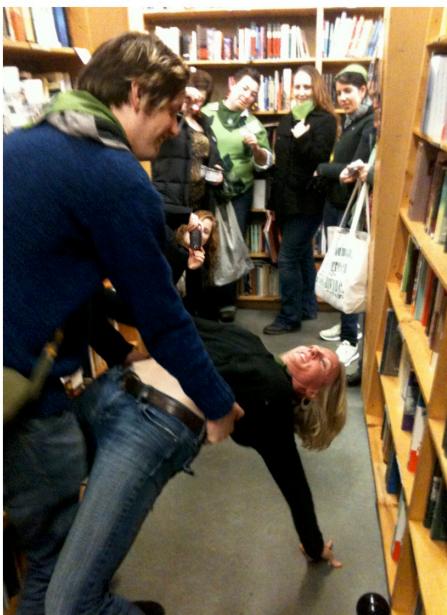

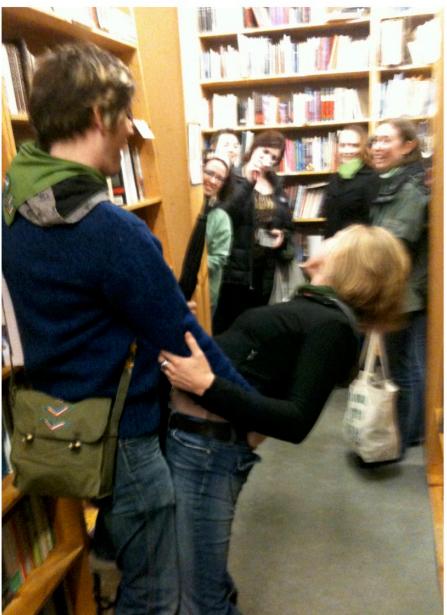

You may be confused. Humans do not know the place by this name - they have always pronounced it without the “T”.

To Chuck: Head to the Trader. He who can sell you your most favorite Unicorn Trainer Snacks. You will need sustenance for your journey. Buy yourself some small red and Oh, So Delicious snacks to share.

You're off to the City of Books! The Great Library of Unicorn Wisdom, which rivals the great libraries of Alexandria. Check with your animal whisperer to know if you need to make an offering of peace and gratitude to the Street Crawling Caterpillar. If the weather be terrible and too cold and rainy, you will know that the creature is most displeased and you need to return to it to travel to your next destination. If the creature be sufficiently appeased and the weather is not too bad, walk ten blocks into the East. Past the rounded domes of the Unicorn Temple. Past the International Unicorn Trainer's Association Hostel. Past the rainbow houses where dwell the little people and over the bridge which marks the boundary of the Ancient Unicorn Burial Grounds. Turn Southward when you reach the Orange Line of that Street Crawling Caterpillar.

To Clara, Raelynne & Heather:

Here is the challenge for Unicorn Bait. With the help of your party you will demonstrate with posing and zucchinis your ability to lure and seduce Unicorns. You will find the tools you need in the Second Section of Row 868. Look to the bottom shelf and select a tome and page. Unicorn Bait, you will need to take charge and organize this crew and Zucchini in the correct positions.

Continue East past the Indian elephants, one atop the other, they are pointing out your way. You are headed to the Secret Gardens of the Great Sleeping Dragon. There beyond the Guardian Gate is the place you seek. Walk past the yellow sign of the Magic Garden - this is but a mirage and a distraction from the true garden you seek. Turn past the sign of the Golden Pegasus, you are nearly there.

Raelynne & Annie: You must meditate and commune with the spirits. Ghost Whisperer and Hunter now is your Test. Sense the vibrations and lead a meditation for your Expedition Crew mates. Be sure to help them lest they interrupt the vibrations and hinder your communications with the Unicorn Spirit world.

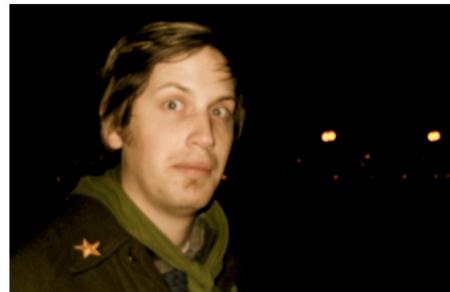

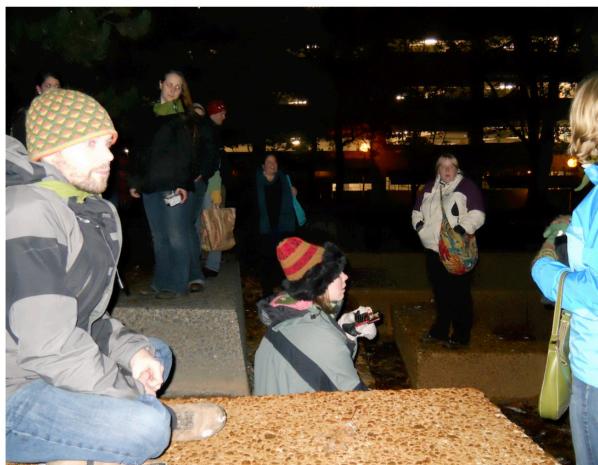

The secret and ancient underground catacombs are your next destination. An oasis marks the entrance, you will know it by its Italian repast and barley malted succor. Rest here a while. (Play Track Nine)

Chuck & Tyler: Urban trackers will lead. Between 2nd and 3rd on Davis is where you are bound. Take what opportunity you may. The others will stand guard, while you attempt to infiltrate the depths of the Secret and Ancient Catacombs.

Chuck: When you arrive, open the envelope marked “do not open yet” and use what you find

Head to the Burning Side and turn South on the Broadest of Ways. Walk ever Southward to the Place of the Pioneers. When you see The Sign in green and white with the name of the first mate of that crazed Captain Ahab, you have arrived. To the back of this sign is the Unicorn Calling Circle. Stand in the center and make The Unicorn Call. This will only work if each member of the expedition makes the call while the others blow the magical bubbles that will lure Unicorns to you. The Greatest of all Unicorn Trainers, Chuck Vose knows the call and can teach everyone.

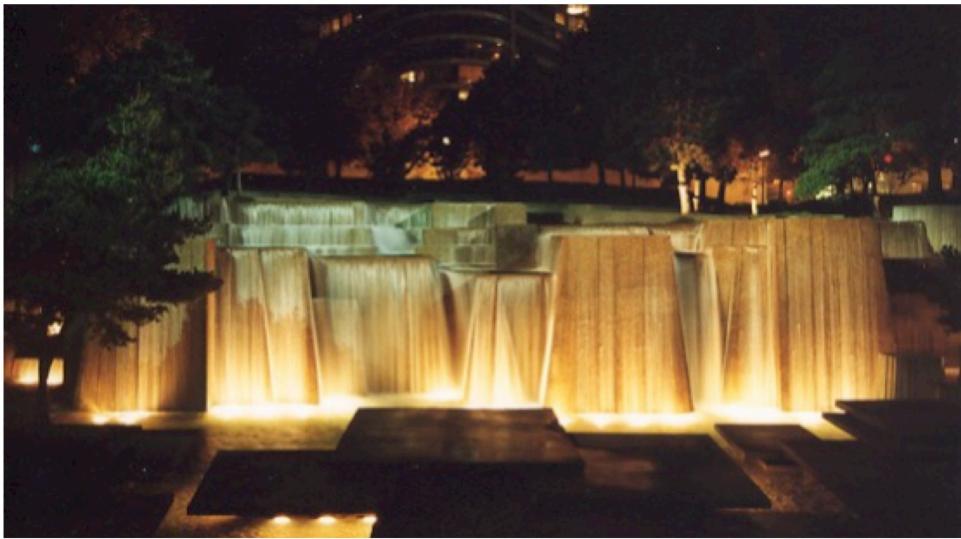

The Sign! Seek Ye the Sign! Astrologers will know The Sign. It tells of Timbuktu and Casa Blanca. You will journey hence to the waters edge. Look! All the animals and woodland creatures are gathering; a sign that Unicorns are near. Once you reach the last street at water's edge, turn southward again to the Tailor's Row.

Chuck: The entire world is contained in a single tiny grain of sand. Imagine what could be contained in the world's tiniest park.

Can you feel it? Unicorns are close at hand. The air freshens and sparkles like glitter. Birds sing and bells chime from far off. The smell of cotton candy is in the air. Quickly now to the Sacred Unicorn Grotto. Walk West to the street that is Thrice Blessed. Then South again to the Street of Clay. Carefully. Stealthily. Keeping the Theater to your back lest you meet greatest peril. Approach the edge of the park and see what you may.
